

Electricity is a form of energy that can be used to power homes and businesses.

Electricity is produced by generators at power plants and transmitted through power lines to homes and businesses.

Electricity is a form of energy that can be used to power homes and businesses.

Electricity is produced by generators at power plants and transmitted through power lines to homes and businesses.

Electricity is a form of energy that can be used to power homes and businesses.

Electricity is produced by generators at power plants and transmitted through power lines to homes and businesses.